

Healing History: An Alabama Convening

Join the Alabama Humanities Alliance for a day of imagination and inspiration in Montevallo.

Hear from Alabamians coming together to examine our shared past — to strengthen our communities, workforces, and relationships today.

Bring your own ideas and examples! How can we use history to better know each other? To better understand the places we all call home?

Healing History: An Alabama Convening

What is this?

This convening will bring people together who are interested in Healing History-type work that brings Alabamians together, across perceived differences, to investigate and understand our shared past. These efforts are nonpartisan and non-political. Our goal is to strengthen our communities, our workforces, and our relationships with each other.

What can I expect?

- Chances to share about your work
- Info on AHA's statewide Healing History initiative
- Sessions showcasing creative, history-based model projects
- Screening of Echoes of The Forks of Cypress + Q&A with the filmmaker
- Plenty of time to sit, talk, and listen with others engaged in this work statewide

Who should attend?

- Representatives of Alabama nonprofits, philanthropies, community foundations, and historical groups already engaged in "Healing History" efforts
- Anyone interested in this type of work, especially those working with nonprofits, local government, healthcare, public history and humanities, media, and more

How do I sign up?

Use the QR code to register for free. If you have questions, contact AHA's Laura Anderson: 205.558.3992 or landerson@alabamahumanities.org.

About the Alabama Humanities Alliance

Founded in 1974, the nonprofit and nonpartisan Alabama Humanities Alliance serves as a state affiliate of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Through our grantmaking and public programming, we promote lifelong learning, impactful storytelling, and civic engagement. We believe the humanities can bring Alabamians together and help us better understand the communities we call home.

About AHA's Healing History Initiative

This is a collaborative effort to strengthen our communities, workforces, and state. We help Alabamians examine our shared histories in efforts to better know and understand one another — across any supposed dividing lines that shouldn't keep us apart.
